THEIR BREECHES ON WRONG.

Edwin Douglas reports in Truth that in looking over the illustrated periodicals depicting the coronation he noticed that in the photographs from life only one poer "knew how to put his breeches on." namely, with "the buttons under the knee. in the proper place, at the front, not at the sido." "This" adds Mr Douglas, "may seem a small matter, but the late King did not think so. I was staying with the late Frank tioll, R.A., when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, called to see a full length portrait just completed of his Royal Highness in court dress. The Prince at once said on looking at the picture: Mr Foll, it is all wrong; you have not got my breeches on right! the fact being that the dress was sent to Mr Holl and put on by his manservant to be painted. "Mr Holl said to me, 'Did you know this !" I replied, 'Yes ' and told him the story of Sr Tatton Sykes, who on seeing a young man with his buttons at the side of his legs said, 'Young man, can you feel a hollow under your kneedsp? Then what do you think nature made that hollow for if not to put your top button in it?' It is, pot the bro ches-maker's fault; "the 8.8. things are made to put on properly.

THE FISH OF SOUTH CHINA.

Specially written for the "CHIKE MAIL," by the Rev. G. A. Busnuny, M. A.)

> [Ooneluded] Bony Fishes.

II." AMAÇANTILINI

We now reach a small but important group of fishes characterized by the medium this (w. those not placed in pairs) being devoid of apinus, and composed of soft, jointed rays. Their economic importance is due to their including the cod and the that fish group.

The cod family frequent temperate and cold waters. They seem to be entirel absent from this region. The "cod-fish of the mark-list (mun u) is probably scicence discanthus which bulongs to an entirely different sub-order of fishes,

THE FLAT-FIBH.

All these fish show a wonderful adaptation of habit to surroundings. They live on the sea-bottom and take the colour northern woters, the Cirrhitidas, similar of the surrounding mud. III, ACANTHOPTERI. The brigade of fishes previously discussed few in number, but commercially very importa t, had soft fin rays. We pass now to the brigade which for want of a botter word we may call "fan-finned," having strong long fin rays which support the dorsal and anal fins. These fish are very abundant in these waters, they almost form the majority of the genera. Dr Günther, as quot d above, places the seahow first on the list in point of nume

The true perches occasionally are found in brackish waters, but are essentially fresh water fishes. They seem to be absent here, while the sex perches are extremely, numerous. Among sen perches the most commonly met are:

(1) Shek paan. Servanus diacunthus Garoupa, B.M.C. I. 110, R. p. 231. This species rises to about 121b in weight and ifound here all the year round. (2) Hung shek paan. Serranus mar.

- (4) - Wak mei. u... (Painted eyebrow_fish) Genyorge octolineatu. B.M.O. I. 178. R.p. 230. So called from the marked yellow central line on a silver-pink ground. The silver pink is only attained in the adult, the young fish being more soberly clad in olive and grey.

(5) Fo tim. (Burn-spotted) Mesoprion fuscescens. B.M.C. I. 201. R.p. 229: A common fish, caught in large numbers in H. 296. R. p. 226. Body silver, fins yellow, sutumn; so called from a round mark like a brand below the dorsal fin. THE CHARTODONS.

This group of purely tropical fishes is unknown in the colder waters. These lishes put on a most brilliant array of colou s, which added to a fint but bulky the largest fish in the Hongkong market 1.72 body, a nest often tubular and an otherwise | Specimens of 6 ft. and over, may occasioninsignificant appearance, give the fish an ally be seen there, mouth and tail roped almost grotesque appearance. Like the era perches above, the Seabreams, with the r powerful teetly, strong grind up mulluscs and crustaceans, present themselves in force. Of the three genera which compose the family the most common is Sargus. (Laapu.) "Snapper," a fish which, as its name implies, can give a bad bite : this fish has a single sories of incisors in front with several rows of grinders behind.

Yet another tropical family, imknown and Hongkong market list, one, "plaice" is therefore unnamed in northern latitudes are not a 'flat fish' at all, but a member of a | the Scorpaenidae. They are the last company tropical family called Chaetodons The other of the great Forch regiment (though some three "halibut," "soles" and "turbot" naturalists place them elsewhere.) All are belong to the same families but not to the carnivorous; some are found in deep water same genera or species as their namesakes | only; all are characterized by the height of the pectoral and dorsal fins; and among 1. They are caught in large numbers at Kapsimoon in January. So important to the foreign residents of Hongkong and south China is the first of the two fish that follow that it is a pity that their family name, Polynemus is almost unknown. Their location is confined to tropical waters :- " 1. Ma yan. Polynemus tetradactylus: B.M. C. H. 329, R.p. 218. "Chinesesalmon." As mentioned above, the true salmon does not exist in these waters. The unmo-sakes have only the name in common, and belong to different sub-orders.

2. Markan Polymenus kunthonemus. B. M.C. II. 325. R.p. 218. Both these fish are caught in winter in large numbers both in Hongkong and Macao. The latter is largely eaten dried: it has nine tiny fins between the true dorsal and the tail.

In the Scicenidae we have a group of fishes better known than those mentioned above, for to this family belong the umbrine of the Mediterranean sea, and the meagreand drum of North America." In this group the typical feature is the length of the soft dor al fin, which is longer than the spinous dorsal and snal fins together. The following are found in the Hongkong market constantly :-

1. Wong fa u. Sciaena nna. M.B.C. II. 292. R. p. 294. Taken at Shatin in the winter. It has dashes of orange round the gill plates, on a silver ground. Average length 2 ft. The Chinese have a belief that these fish are sometimes changed into the rice bird (woh kuk).

2. Pak fa u. Sciaena albiflora. B.M.C. weight 10-12 lb. Caught at Tai O, Lantau, in the winter months.

3. Man u. Sciaena diacanthus. (The hammer-headed shark the honour of being together. It must be a hard job to get in k; but when caught one of them would foed a whole village." An important article of food in many of

THE MACKEREL GROUP.

Still following the numerous groups of spiny-finned fishes, we come to a groupthe Cottoscombriformes, which includes many families, but may for the sake of convenience, be described, as above.

Of these many families, the Stromateidae, relations of John Dory, have perhaps the largest member of representatives these water. In these fishes the body is compressed more or less oblong, and covered with very small scales. The testh are Passing by groups of fishes which include and the well-known, stickle-backs; of our home streams, we come in our study of spiny-finned fi hes to the serpont heads (Ophiocephali) which ospecially abound in this, the Oriental region. They are longbodied, that headed fishes, nome of which grow to the length of a yard or mora. They bury themselves in the mud during seasons of drought, and are said to come to the surface at intervals to get a breath of fresh

1. Shang w. Ophiocephalus muculatus.

2. Tring Kung u. Ophiocephalus puticola the well snake-head, said to be found in wells where the soil is soft.

On these fish Richardson has the following note "These Ophiocophali are carried about the streets of Canton in tubs and are cut in pieces slive for sale." The practice is too common not only in China but also in Hongkong; there are not many salesmen humane enough to give the poor fish a blow with the back of the knife to stun it before it is out up.

Next in order of families come the Anabantidas or Climbing Perches, so called from their power, which has been proved. of climbing even high trees in search of moisture during periods of drought. These perches are said to be found, and to display-their-climbing powers in the upper reaches of the West River. Richardson gives Chusan (then a British naval station) as their habitat in China.

Closely connected with the above is another West River fish - Kam sau u (golden embroidery) Betta pugna-a brilliant little fish with orange streaks upon silver. In Singapore, as is well known, these fish are set to fight: Average length, 5 ins. So pugnicious are they that even the sight of themselves in a mirror will stir them to fight.

This concludes a very hasty survey of the great brigade of spiny finned fishes Several sections and families, many of which live in deep water, have been omitted, and no exhaustive account of local species has been given in these families which have been mentioned.

IV PHARMAGOGNATHE ... The typical example of the first subr'er are the sen horses (hoi ma. Hippocampdis) who are frequently washed ashore Hongkong after heavy gales. The force of the tide having proved low strong for their tails, which serve as anchors, they are carried away from their moorings, and swept about at the mercy of the waves. in these fishes the gill opening is extremely minute, some of the fine disappear, leaf only returns to it when he begins to feel like growths take their place, and the result is a creature which seems to have a link with snakes, fishes and sea-weeds. Strange indeed it seems to be told that "in spite of its many structural oddities, ts ge etle kinship with the stickle-backs cannot be doubted." Scarcely less reputable, from the point if view of the well-grown turbot, or the sleek grey-mullet, must the last sub-order. appear. It is common along the shores of the colony in summer. - Chinese urchins squeeze the poor little fish till it inflates itself, they then bing it like a paper bag, and it goes off with a loud report.

In bringing these notes to a close the writer would again disclaim for them either original ty or exhaustiveness. En hopes that slight as they are, they are fairly accurate, though it cannot but be that mistakes have crept in. (This is especially the case where two types of fish have the same Chinese name). But if the Notes serve the natural history of the country in which hav are living they will have served the purpose for which they were written.

"BIG MONEY" EMPLOYEES.

When Personality is Worth More Than Experience.

The head of a big contracting firm in New York has been looking two years now. for a $25,000-a-year man. The curious features of his search, says the New York Times, are that the man be wants shall have as little technical knowledge of the business as possible and no ability as a salesman. The requisites are that he shall dress well, appear well, be between thirty and forty, and associate with people of Such a man, when I find the right one will bring me in hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of business a year," says this contractor. "He can do more for me than a dozen fairly competent salesmon who know this business thoroughly. Ho will be worth every cent I pay him and much more. "In an hour I can teach him ! all that he will need to know. The use he'll be? Why, simply to talk up the firm among the big people he meets and associates with, "getting them interested in it because of him and keeping them familiar with what it is doing. The more he man ages to give the impression that he has a sake sin, the concern and is in its inside, management the borter! .

"The smartest splesmen can't always get close to the hig people. Such a man as I am looking for can often do it easily: do it in enough cases to count big. With KULANGSU. no effort at dil, just because of his acquaintauce, he'll bring them into my office at the very moment they're wanting something. I'll find that, man sooner or later

"The confirmator's case is no uncommen one .- There "are springing up steadily, Two minutes walk from the principal landbecause their usefulness is being recognised and keenly appreclated, a new order of men in large business enterprises. They are spoken of as big morey employees, because where others draw hundreds they draw thousands, and seemingly for little VTIRACTING GOOD CUSTOMERS. Men who have spent years learning the intricate workings of a business and are highly competent, together with energetic, able salesmen, rank far bel ov these "un knowns" who sell no goods at all and have had no experience in the "line." Those who are not behind the scenes half despise and altogether envy those of the big money, until one day unexpected business and celebrity appear in the offices. Their awe increases when the celebrity turns to the 'unknown" and calls him, familiarly, NTERNATIONAL DANKING

Even then the average employee of the business world does not give the big money man his full due. He is apt to forget that it is the person who gets the really, good customer and attaches him permanently that is entitled to the chief rewards, and that such successes are not generall; to be won through plodding regular avenues. One thing is certain, these men would not keep on getting phenomenally large pay unless they were worthit.

A New Yorker who rarely gets down to the office of an important firm of Wall street bankers and brokers sends in so much business that his pay averages five or six hundred dollars a week. He has a gua: antre of four handred. Uptown he is believed to direct the concern, giving orders to trained subordinate; and partners who are really junior to him. This man, in spite of his large reputation, is a simple salesman whose personality manages to draw customers. In the office, in any position at all, he would be helpless, for he knows nothing more of the "street" that the average man away from it. Yet not another. employee or a partner of the house can get so much valuable business for it. A good many businesses now have just such men. There is not a big realty concern in any of the large cities but either has a man of this sort on its staff, or wants one. For the big money employee of today, for all he seems to be doing little or nothing most of the time and leading a life of pleasure instead of grinding like other men, is actually a hard and tireless worker. PAID-UP CAPITAL 30,000,000.00 Day and night he is watching the main chance, to create big trade where none exists, or to steer it out of the hands of rivals as clever as himself into his own.

THE MOSQUITO THAT FLIES BY MIGHT

Is The One That Spreads Malabia Says. A DISTINGUISHED LONDON SCIENTIST. Retired Stationmester In Ceylon Confirms

The Verdict Of Thousands hat The Only Positive Remedy For MALARIA Id DR. WILLIAMS PINK PILLS

One of the best known scientific writers in England, a doctor by profession, bas lately advanced the theory that the particular brood of mosquite, which infects people with Malaria only goes abroad at night. Mr Edwin Herft of "Asperia Bungalow, Kandy, Coylon, could not tell you with any certainty the hour when the Malarial poison:

was first implanted in his system, but no such uncertainty exists in his mind as to when and how he became cured "It was some time during the year 1905 when I was located as stationmaster at Matale, Ceylon Government Railway, that Malaria, attacked me, "said Mr Herft. "I had always been particularly healthy until then, but after that I found myself becoming awful chill set in ; my respiration became affected, and after a few hurried steps I had to lean against the nearest support and grap for breath, my heart, all the while palpitating wildly. All day I felt languid and depressed, yet directly I went to bed a nervous restlesances made it impossible for me to obtain restful, comfortable sleep. My weight decreased until I became an amacint-. 408 ed, unhealthy-looking man. So exhausted was my nervous system that I trembled at the least excitement; even the optic nerves did not escape, for my eye sight became so weak that I found it necessary—under the oculist's orders—to wear glasses. "Despite medical attention my condition became so serious that I went into Hospital as an in-patient for a short while, but about after my exit from there I had a relapse Then it was through reading in the newspapers of some remarkable cures of Nervous Disorders having been wrought by 2 Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I was led to obtain a supply of these Pills for myself. "After the second bottle of Dr. Williams" Pink Pills I experienced a keeness appetite to which I had long been a stranger and felt less weary and languid. REVIEWS. Selected Poemi, by Oncast Wilde. London, Methuen and Co. By including this little volume in the General Literature series of their popular shilling library Messra Methuen and Co. have acted wisely, and the result should be to familiarise the public with some of the best work of a sad figure in the literary world. The selection of writings under notice has been edited by Mr John Ross, who thinks that a selection from Oscar Wilde's early verses may be of interest to a large public at present familiar only with the always popular "Billad of Reading Gaol." This particular Ballad occupies about half the volume, as it is reproduced both in extense and in shorter form based on the original draft, this latter being included for the benefit of reciters and their audiences who have found the entire poem too long for declamation. There are some sixteen other contributions, including seven sonnets. The book should find general favour among admirers of Wilde's undoubted genius.

He is Risen Again, by CHARLES MORICE. London, Bell and Sons.

"We have been endeavouring without success to fathom the purpose of this novel. The theme—that of Christ returning to earth and appearing at some gay centre of 20th century existence—is not entirely new but the author's treatment of it certainly is. In this instance it is at Paris where Christ reappears and we are given an unconvincing recital of the way in which His coming interferes [with the ordinary-activities of life, culminating, after what may be termed a second Sermon on the Mount, in the Prefect of the Police waiting on Jesus and in the name of the President of the Republic asking him to leave the city and the country-a request which is complied with to the great relief of the distracted populace. The whole story fails to grip, and one can nover get away from the feeling of incongruity which manifests itself all through the volume.

What a Life! by "E.V.Lil" and "G.M. 🚉 . London, Methuen and Co. 🖫

This little shilling paper-covered volume is an amusing skit on the illustration, which usually grace (7) the pages of the catalogues issued by the big London stores. It is a humourous biography illustrated by these typical catalogue pictures, is cleverly written, and its very absurdness is bound to provoke many a smile. In their Chicken. Kai Chai preface the authors say :- "As adventures are to the adventurous, so is romance to the romantic. One man searching the pages of Whiteley's General Doves, Pan Kau Catalogue will find only facts and prices ; Eggs. Hen-Kai Tan ... another will find what we think we have Colebrations at Macao.

Writing under date of the 5th inst. or Macao correspondent savs :--

The first note in the Republican com memorative festivities was struck last night at the restrictive function where members of the Club de Macao and their families re velled in a gay hop till the wee hours of this morning. Bunting, evergreens and symholic contrivances very charmingly revealed the artistic skill of the Patria's crow particularly in the D. Pedro auditorium, the supper room ad hoc, where dainty snippets were served at about 1 a.m. Tossts were proposed which all breathed fond hopes for the progress of the Republic and the common weal of the Old Country. The band of the 8th Rajputs rendered very much appreciated contributions. Some hardy stragglers withstood the appeals of their jaded limbs till the hour of the Reveille at 5 a.m. when the military band ushered in at the gates of Government House, th dayspring of the return of the fateful 5th

At the solemn session held at noon in the Leal Senado da Camara an oration held on Sunday, 8th October, at 1.30 p.m. was delivered by His Excellency the Governor (Sr. Machado), who addressed the company present in the following words :- Citizens !- This my first opportunity to address the people of Macao, in the hall of their lawful representatives, since I took over charge of the Colony some ten months ago, is made doubly welcome by its coincidence with a national high-day which marks the advent of th Republic in Portugal.
